About Us

The primary mission of Flanders Vaccine is to build partnerships and ensure coordination between relevant actors and sectors involved in innovation, research and development, and supply of vaccines and immunotherapeutics. An innovation-friendly R&D environment is absolutely crucial to drive the development of vaccines and immunotherapeutics, widely recognized as essential tools in the maintenance of public and animal health.

The goal of Flanders Vaccine is to stimulate the development of vaccines and immunotherapeutics, building on existing strengths in human and animal R&D, relying on the One Health concept.

By organizing cross-fertilization between academic centers and bridging the gap between academic research, sme's and industry, Flanders Vaccine aims to be an important facilitator for enabling ground-breaking research. Sharing of knowledge and expertise will generate many opportunities in the discovery-development-supply spectrum that give rise to highly valued interactions between multiple disciplines.
